COUNCIL SETS 60-CENT LEVY

CITY TAXES TO BE LESS THIS FALL.

VALUES UP SLIGHTLY

Levy Last Year Was 64 Cents, Decrease Being Made in General and Water Bond Funds.

A levy of 60 cents on the $100 valuation, a decrease of 4 cents from the levy of last year, was fixed last night by the City Council, holding an adjourned meeting.

While the valuation on which taxes will be collected this fall is slightly higher than last year, the new levy is expected to produce revenue somewhat less than that received from the 1925 tax collections.

The valuation on which the 1926 taxes will be collected is $1,359,535 on personal property and bank stock, $3,891,463 on real estate and $213,445 (estimated) on merchants' stocks. The total is $5,464,443, against a total last year of $5,328,325.

The estimated revenue last year was $34,918.18. The "book revenue" from this year's levy is $32,786.65.

Decreases were voted by the council in the levies for the general fund, first water bond interest and first water bond principal. The street lighting levy was raised from 5 cents to 10 cents. The comparative levies follow:

General revenue fund, 1925, 35 cents, 1926, 32 cents.

Street lighting, 1925, 5 cents, 1926, 10 cents.

Library, 1925, 5 cents, 1926, 5 cents.

First water bond principal, 1925, 10 cents, 1926, 5 cents.

First water bond interest, 1925, 2 cents, 1926 1 cent.

Second water bond principal, 1925 5 cents, 1926, 5 cents.

Second water bond interest, 1925, 2 cents, 1926, 2 cents.

Total, 1925, 64 cents, 1926, 60 cents.

The council also voted the usual poll tax of $2 to apply to "every able bodied male" between the ages of 21 and 50.

The McDonnell Chevrolet Co. was granted permission to erect an electric sign at its place of business, 114 West Second street.

Trust Company Files Motion for New Trial

Twenty Reasons Are Set Forth Why Verdict Giving $2,500 to Mrs. Minnie M. Paxston Should Be Overruled.

A motion in arrest of judgment and another for a new trial were filed in Circuit Court this morning by the Gillam-Jackson Loan and Trust Co., in the suit brought by Mrs. Minnie M. Paxston.

The motion for new trial sets forth twenty reasons why the verdict for Mrs. Paxston should be set aside. The first four declare the verdict against the law and evidence. The fifth asserts that the verdict was the result of sympathy on the part of the jury in favor of the plaintiff, and the sixth that the ten jurors who signed the verdict were biased and prejudiced against banking companies because of two recent failures.

Most of the other reasons allege errors of admission and non-admission of certain evidence, particularly the questioning in regard to the trust company's dealings with Roy F. Hanna, former cashier of the First National Bank, prior and subsequent to the company's acquisition of the William R. Williams note for $2,500 over which the suit was brought.

Errors in the judge's instructions to the jury also are charged and the final reason set fort is that the damages were "excessive and unwarranted in law and in fact," because it is not shown by any petition or the evidence that at the time of the institution of the suit or the trial the defendant had in its possession or under its control any money or property in any sum whatever belonging to William R. Williams, his wife, or Mrs. Paxston or in which they had any interest.

Would Limit Speeches in German Reichstag

Berlin, June 25.—President Paul Loebe of the Reichstag believes he has found a remedy for the epidemic of yawns among German deputies.

There now is no limit on the length of speeches, and Loebe suggested that the several hours some deputies require to state their views is too long. He would limit speeches to half an hour. He also would permit question and answer conversations between speakers and seated deputies during the debate.

BOY DROWNS IN NEW POOL

LESTER MOORE OF CLEARMONT IS VICTIM

WAS GOOD SWIMMER

Suddenly Sank and Did Not Come to Surface Again—Pulmotor Sent From Maryville

Lester Moore, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Moore, one and a half miles east of Clearmont, was drowned while swimming in the Ross Wallace swimming pool, just south of Clearmont, about 10 o'clock last night.

There were several in the pool at the time. Young Moore, it is said, suddenly sank and did not come to the surface again. He was a good swimmer and death was due either to cramps or a heart attack. He had been in the pool yesterday afternoon.

A pulmotor was sent from Maryville following the accident but the boy could not be revived. Dr. Frank Wallis, county coroner, went to Clearmont late last night and held a view inquest. His verdict was "death by accidental drowning."

Besides his parents, Young Moore is survived by one sister, Flora May, and three brothers, Francis, Harold and Eugene.

The swimming pool at Clearmont has been open but a short time.

Funeral services will be held at the Baptist Church at Clearmont at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. W. W. Laughlin. Burial will be in the Oak Hill cemetery at Clearmont.

FAIL TO FIND SHACK-PRISON

MCPHERSON CONDUCTED SEARCH NETS NOTHING.

COUNTRY NO FAMILIAR

Authorities Begin Exhaustive Inquiry To Recognize Discrepancies In Story With Facts.

Douglas, Arix., June 25.—Aimee Semple McPherson's personally-conducted search into Mexico for the shack in which she says she was held prisoner by kidnappers failed completely today.

The search was made in automobiles by Captain of Detectives Herman Cline and a deputy district attorney from Los Angeles, led by Mrs. McPherson.

The expedition which left here early today drove more than a hundred miles across the border but Mrs. McPherson was unable to point out any place which she recognized after having escaped from the shack where she asserts she was held for a $500,000 ransom.

Douglas, Ariz., June 25.—Authorities of California and Arizona today began an exhaustive inquiry into the story told by Aimee Semple McPherson, head of the Angelus temple at Los Angeles, in an effort to reconcile discrepancies in her story with the known facts in the case.

Merchants to Play Atchison Co. Team

Revised Line-Up to Start for Maryville in Game on Local Fair Grounds Diamond Sunday Afternoon

The Maryville Merchants baseball team will play the Atchison County All-Stars on the local fair grounds diamond Sunday afternoon. The Atchison County team is reputed to be one of the best teams in that section and have been playing excellent ball. Maryville will have practically the same team on the field that met the All-Star team at Bigelow last Sunday. Although Maryville lost this game, by a small margin, they played errorless ball throughout the contest. Brennan working on the mound for Maryville, had difficulty in the first inning getting the ball to cut the corners. After the first inning he settled down and held the opposing team to one hit in the remainder of the game.

Joy will toil on the hill for the Merchans' Sunday. He has been working out regularly and apparently is in fine condition for this game. The Merchants' have a line-up now that with the addition of Joy on the mound, are capable of playing a fine brand of ball. The baseball fans of Maryville and community have a chance to see a game Sunday well worth their while. The Maryville lineup: Laughlin, c; Joy, p; Brennan, 1b; Mayes, 2b; Tobin, ss; Arthur, 3b; Barnes, lf; Woolen, cf; England, rf.

All shorthorn breeders, whether members of the association or not, are invited to the meeting.

Ex-Governor Hyde Takes Auto, Then Finds It's Not His

Trenton, June 25.—This business of making off with somebody else's car is easy. In fact it is too easy to be safe, former Governor Arthur M. Hyde believes, and he speaks from experience.

Thursday morning the former chief executive stepped out of his offices in the Hyde Motor Sales building on East Ninth, hopped into the Buick 1926 sedan in front of the building, and started on an errand.

About fifteen minutes later, Mr. Hyde came dashing back and, with some satisfaction, deserted the automobile he had been driving.

"That's not my car," he said. "Don't know whose it is." Then he explained he had been out in the machine some time when he began to discover he was in the wrong bus. A strange package in the car was the first clue. Then he remembered he had parked his own motor vehicle, a like make and model, on the opposite side of the street.

The former governor completed his trip and returned the car before its owner had missed it.

"Yeh, it's too easy to be safe," he agreed.

NO HOPE FOR FARM RELIEF

LEADERS ABANDON EFFORTS THIS SESSION.

SOLDIER BILL NEXT

"Sore Spots" In Wake of Defeat of McNary-Haugen Equalization Measure By Senate Yesterday.

Washington, June 25.—The last hope of enacting a farm relief bill at the present session of Congress was abandoned this afternoon when Republican leaders agreed with spokesmen for the farm bloc to drop further consideration of agriculture legislation in the Senate.

This decision was reached when farm bloc spokesmen announced they would not support a new substitute measure in place of the McNary-Haugen crop export bill which was defeated in the Senate yesterday by a vote of forty-five to thirty-nine.

Administration leaders immediately made overtures to push aside all remaining farm legislation in order to consider soldiers' relief measures and the bloc members agreed.

Washington, June 25 — Noticeably nervous over the political punishment that may be meted out by the embittered corn belt in November because of the failure to adopt any measure for agricultural relief this session, Congress prepared today to go home next week and see about getting itself re-elected.

Now that the McNary-Haugen program has been defeated, it is expected that the plan to adjourn by June 30 or July 3 will be revived and shoved through irrespective of other legislation.

Only a few measures of major importance, such as the radio control bill and the rivers and harbors bill, remain on the urgent schedule.

Considerable bitterness was found today in the wake of the corn belt's defeat. It was sent down to decisive defeat by a combination of the conservatives of both parties in a fight that saw party lines more completely shattered than they have been on any issue in recent years. The Republican split could not have been more complete twenty-three voting for and twenty-four against. The Democrats were little better off, dividing fifteen and twenty-one.

Washington, June 25.—Appointment of Sherman J. Lowell, farm leader, to the tariff commission, closely following appointment of another farm expert, Carl Williams to the railway mediation board, today confirmed the feeding here that President Coolidge is striving for a reconciliation with the farmers.

No other reason has been offered for the appointment of farm representatives to two important positions where the farm element has never enjoyed participation before. The administration it was explained, is doubtful of the exact reaction of the farm relief controversy.

To be on the safe side, political observers, say the President is giving the farmers participation in administration affairs.

Williams is vice chairman of the national council of the farmers cooperative marketing associations and editor of a farm magazine.

Leave For New York.

Miss Elizabeth Leet and Miss Mabel Cook left this afternoon for New York where they will attend the summer session of Columbia University. The trip east will be made by way of Quebec.

SENSATION IN SLUSH PROBE

WILSON TELLS OF APPOINTMENT OFFERED HIM.

WHEELER IS UP AGAIN

Dry Chief Brings Documents to Prive Brewers Placed Fund at Disposition of Wet Candidate.

Washington, June 25 — The war chests of both wet and dry camps in the recent three-million-dollar Pennsylvania Senatorial primary campaign came under investigation today when the Senate slush fund committee recalled Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League.

Wheeler faced cross examination on the amount of money spent by the Anti-Saloon League, not only in the Pennsylvania campaign but in other states. He came armed with documents to prove that brewers of Pennsylvania had banded together to place a campaign fund at the disposition of wet candidates.

On the dry side of the question the committee sought further information about the League's special campaign fund raised by subscriptions from state anti-saloon leagues all over the country. This fund was handled through a special treasury, exclusive of all League money. Arthur Wilson, a Washington attorney, had charge of the fund Wheeler told the committee.

Washington, June 25—William B. Wilson, who served as Secretary of Labor in the Wilson administration and who is now the Democratic nominee for the Senate from Pennsylvania, created something of a sensation today when he took the witness stand before the Reed committee and testified that he had been offered an appointment on the new railroad mediation board since winning the Senatorial nomination.

Wilson said the offer came to him confidentially and that he had rejected it. He declined to say who made the offer.

President Coolidge completed the personnel of the new board only a few days ago after maintaining one vacancy on the board after originally naming four out of five members on the board.

Mr. Wilson surprised the committee by saying that he had spent only $88.81 to win the Democratic nomination. He added that his campaign committee, which also conducted the race of William E. Porter for the Democratic nomination for governor, spent only $10,000.

The statement brought smiles to members of the committee who had heard of campaign funds ranging from $195,000 of Governor Gifford Pinchot to the $1,250,000-fund of Senator George W. Pepper.

The revelation that an effort had been made to get Mr. Wilson out of the Pennsylvania race created an excitement at the hearing. It was brought out by Senator La Follette, Republican of Wisconsin.

"Was any effort made to get you to withdraw from this race?" asked Senator La Follette.

"No," replied Wilson.

"Were you offered a position by the president?"

"Yes."

"What was it?"

"A position on the railroad mediation board," Mr. Wilson answered.

GERMANY PAYS.

Germany made her payments during the past winter with difficulty, because of unemployment and business failures—but she paid.

Seymour Gilbert, the American agent-general whose job it is to collect and distribute German reparation money under the Dawes plan, pays Germany a sincere compliment. During the first nine months of the second year under that plan, ending June 21, he reports Germany paid more than any conquered nation before ever paid her victors, meeting al lher obligations, and meeting them entirely out of her own resources.

It was not such a great sum judged by American standards, but it seems great for Germany, everything considered. It amounted to 821,000,000 gold marks, over $200,000,000. That sum is divided among eleven countries—German's war creditors—and the thing of particular interest in America is that our country gets part of it.

The American portion is small, only $7,000,000. Yet it is something to cheer about when America gets anything at all out of Germany, after all the billions the Kaiser and his crowd forced this country to spend in making the seas safe for Americans and the world safe for—well, whatever it was that we made it safe for. Sometimes, observing all these dictatorships and censorships and one thing and another, we're not quite sure about it.

TESTING TAXICAB DRIVERS

Comforting news for the readers who ride in taxicabs is related in the June Forum. A Chicago cab company is administering a set of psychological tests to its taxicab drivers in an effort to weed out drivers who are potentially dangerous, without waiting for a succession of accidents to make their unfitness obvious. This is one of the many new ways in which practical psychology is being applied to business, and the results, of course, are by no means sure. One of the tests is for emotional stability: The candidate is required to operate a somewhat complicated series of switches and foot-pedals according to carefully given directions, and while he is doing it, he is given unexpectedly a mild electric shock. The examiner observes to what extent the surprise upsets the equanimity and competence of the driver. There is also a test for carelessness, and a third for space perception. With small-model vehicles the candidate is required to estimate speeds and meeting places. He must do this both accurately and quickly in order to convince the examiner that he could make similar judgment safely while piloting a car on the streets.—Review of Reviews.

CIVILIZED NERVES.

The East is more nervous than the West, says Dr. T. H. Weisenberg of Philadelphia. "That is because the East is more densely populated than any other portion of the country, and because the East is the center of the nation's highest civilization."

Here other sections may rise to object, not only because of the reference to "civilization," but because Dr. Weisenberg regards nervousness as a merit.

He doesn't mean by that word what we usually mean. He is thinking not especially of jumpy nerves, but of quickness of thought and ready response to mental suggestion. This comes, he says, from a high degree of education and development.

"Lawyers, doctors, newspaper men and other highly trained people belong to the nervous class. They are the people who carry the world forward." Physical nerves, he admits, go with this mental progress. The farmer is less nervous than the city man, in this popular sense, because he does less work requiring mental activity.

Isn't it possible, though, while acquiring mental quickness, to rise above this physical nervousness through training? Dr. Weisenberg speaks only of East and West in our own country. In the Orient are millions of Hindus, Chinese and Japanese who are certainly as nimble minded as we, but who have carried their culture far enough beyond mere brain-development to calm their spirit and master their nerves.

BETTER LAWYERS AND BETTER SERVICE.

There is a noticeable decrease in the amount of litigation over neighborhood rows and small matters within the last few years. Cases involving an army of witnesses carried through all the courts by a big array of lawyers and piling up thousands of dollars in costs were the common thing a few years ago.

It may have been over a division fence, a stray pig, a bunch of chickens or a worthless jack or even a dog but men in the heat of passion would rush to a lawyer for vengeance and would be accommodated over a period of years for a substantial fee.

People are apparently less belligerent now than formerly and a large part of this is likely due to better advice on the part of lawyers. The standard of lawyers generally we believe is higher than it used to be and this fact is reflected in a more reasonable citizenship.

Upon the good advice of attorneys, instead of paying for vengeance upon the man against whom they have a real or fancied grievance, men pay for good advice and consider reasonable settlements out of court more often with a great saving of court costs and with less bad feeling between men and women who should be neighbors and friends.

Congressman Vare and his friends spent about $700,000 and won a senatorial nomination and the Senate threw in an investigation for good measure. Still Mr. Vare isn't certain that he got a good bargain.

Secretary Mellon seems to have done some good work for the farm relief bill now pending in Congress. He issued a vigorous statement opposing it and had the effect of turning a number of congressmen and senators for it.

The Kansas City Star is to be sold June 30 or soon after, according to the announcement of the trustees. It will be a big relief to Kansas City and to the Star organization to know who is going to get it and what is to happen next.

The Constitution of the United States says men guilty of "treason, felony and other crimes," who shall flee from justice into other states must be delivered up to the state having jurisdiction for trial. But Governor Terral of Arkansas probably reasons as did another distinguished gentleman in history, 'what's the constitution between friends?'"

What Other Editors Say

WHAT'S THE USE?

What's the use of scrapping and quarreling every time you fail to have your own way about things? What is accomplished by wrangling over unimportant details, anyway? Sometimes you get what you want, more often you do not, but in either case the result is affected but little through wrangling and fussing. The person who remains calm under annoying circumstances has a better mind than the one inclined to "fly off the handle" at a moment's notice. The fellow who spits on his hands, cracks his heels together and threatens to clean up all who disagree with him, only advertises to the world that he is rattle-brained and equipped with but one resouree, a show of force. Even many of the things that seem of tremendous importance at the moment, fade or entirely disappear with time. Not so with the mean things said and done in spite and anger. The petty selfishness that is exposed, the littleness and the intolerance exhibited in disputes and wrangles, live long in the memories of people who might otherwise be your friends. If this be preaching—than make the most of it.—Shenandoah Sentinel.

THE DOLLAR.

Just a dollar on a mission sent, makes a lot of people glad each time the coin is spent. You pay it to the butcher for the meat to give you strength; he takes it to the grocer from whom it goes at length, some pretty lace or cloth his better half to buy, or help to get her summer hat to make her rival sigh. The dry goods man sent on the coin to pay the market bill, and though the coin is often spent it stays a dollar still, and every time 'tis spent at home, some act of good is done; in booming local industries it's bound to make them run. But if you take the shining coin and break the local chain, the chances are that from afar 'twill not return again. If once it passes out of town the butcher and baker, the grocer and the dry goods man, the furniture man and carpenter, the wagon man and blacksmith, the shoeman and the printer, every one will lose the chance to touch the coin ere the setting of the sun. Just keep the little coin at home, just keep it moving well, and every time it changes hands somebody's goods 'twill sell. That single little dollar has thus a wondrous power to make somebody happy a dozen times an hour. It pays the bill and wards off ill and ne'er its power relaxes, to soothe the doctor, buy the coal and pay for the clothes and taxes.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTER

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer.

Washington—President Coolidge is like a trainer in a cageful of lions.

The lions mind the trainer so long as they're afraid of him.

But they don't like him. That is, they don't like him in any other sense than that they'd like to eat him up.

Perhaps they could, too, but they're not sure of it. They're suspicious that he's got a gun or something up his sleeve. If they jump at him, they've an idea maybe he'll grab it out and bowl 'em over dead.

But once let just one of those lions give that trainer a good scratch or take a bite out of his leg, and then let the rest of 'em see that he hasn't got a gun or anything, and it's Mr. Trainer, good night.

President Coolidge's lions are getting out of hand. How much so, it's as yet a little too soon to say. Between now and next November we shall find out.

In other words, his own national party leaders, with mighty few exceptions, never did like Calvin Coolidge.

But they were afraid of him.

Or, rather, they were afraid of what they believed to be his popularity with a big majority of the voters.

Now, beyond question, his popularity has waned. Has it waned to a point where they can safely chew him up? As previously remarked, it will take a few more weeks or months to show.

Democrats Find Issue in Pennsylvania.

By PAUL R. MALLON

Washington, June 25—Two months ago the Democrats were crying for issues for the congressional campaign.

Scenting no break in administration policies which would afford a hearty campaign they even trotted out old tariff issue with the purpose of linking it up with agriculture relief to stir up a furore. It did not have immediately the desired effect.

But their issue came when they least expected it—in a Republican senatorial campaign in Pennsylvania.

After Senator Truman H. Newberry of Michigan had been seated by the Republican party in 1922 even though he had spent $195,000 in a primary campaign, the Democrats seized upon that as one of their big issues. They chided the Republican party for adopting a senate resolution which said $195,000 was too much to be spent in a primary campaign and in the same resolution awarding Newberry a seat. They rejoiced even as late as a month ago in publishing the list of the Republicans who had voted to seat Newberry and in pointing out how few were left in the senate.

Then came the Pennsylvania primary with confessed expenditures which show Newberry spent only a fraction of what was spent by George Wharton Pepper, defeated administration candidate in the Republican senatorial race. Even Gifford Pinchot, who ran third in the senatorial contest, admitted on the witness stand that he believed all his organizations spent within a few thousand dollars of what Newberry spent.

The Democrats jumped to that evidence and their leaders now say it will be one of their points in the clash with Republicans at the polls in November—used in much the same manner in which the Teapot Dome scandals investigation was used in 1924.

It was peculiar how they came upon the issue.

Senator Jim Reed, Democrat Missouri, who has been against Democratic policies at least as often as he had been for them, heard reports of large expenditures in Pennsylvania and Illinois in the Republican primary contests which were hotly contested in both states.

Prohibition was the big issue in Pennsylvania. Two of the Republican candidates were said to have had the support of the Anti-Saloon league. One of these candidates was known to have spent the most money. Reed is a wet and energetic opponent of the Anti-Saloon league. Here, he is credited with thinking, was a good chance to investigate the Anti-Saloon league.

The world court was the big issue in Illinois. Reed has been trying to find out for years where propaganda for the world court emanated. He believed vast sums were being spent in the propaganda. Here was a good chance to see who spent the money and how much for the world court candidate.

So even though the Democratic party was for the court and nationally refusing to tamper with prohibition, Reed succeeded in getting through the senate his resolution for a primary expenditure infuiry by a senate committee.

And lo what he got was an issue for the Democratic party.

BRAZILIAN PRESIDENT URGES MOVE CAPITAL.

Rio De Janeiro.—President Arthur Bernardes, after three and a half years at the head of the Brazilian government is convinced of the necessity of removing the capital of Brazil from Rio de Janeiro to a district in the center of the State of Goyaz, which is geographically more centrally located.

In his last message to Congress he again called the attention of the legislators to the provision of the Federal Constitution for removal of the Federal capital to Goyaz, where a strip was marked off by the makers of the Constitution for the future capital of the Republic.

What the nation pays for the upkeep and development of natural beauties of Rio de Janeiro alone would be more than sufficient to meet all expenses connected with removing the capital to Goyaz, President Bernardes declared.

White and Indians Meet on Site of Custer's Stand to Pledge Renewed Peace and Friendship

Billings, Mont., June 25. (United Press).—The Seventh U. S. Cavalry today rode up Little Rosebud valley and down the ridge where 50-years ago today Gen. George A. Custer and his 207 men dashed to their deaths.

And from the opposite side of the ridge came 3,000 Sioux and Cheyennes, the two forces to meet on the battlefield of Little Big Horn, not as foes, but as friends.

Fifty thousand are expected to gather at Crow agency, three miles from where General Custer and his men gave their lives to the last man, to commemorate the intrepid white warrior, and give equal tribute to the picturesque Chief Gall, who paid too dear a price for his voctory since it was for the Red Man the beginning of the end that came within fifteen months.

The anniversary will see further progress in peace, for not only will the white men and the Indians reaffirm their pledges, but two tribes, the Crow and Sioux, between whom down the ages has come a bitter enmity, plan today for the first time to smoke the pipe of peace.

A Reunion Yesterday.

A reunion of the veterans of all Indian wars took place yesterday. In the limelight stood the few surviving veterans of the commands of Major Reno and Captain Benteen who campaigned with Custer, and their old Indian adversaries who participated in the actual engagement in which Custer and his entire command lost their lives.

Four troops and the regimental band of the Seventh Cavalry from Fort Bliss today traveled the route that Custer rode, to meet on the battle field the Indians approaching from the opposite direction, chanting ancestral death hymns for their departed. In the latter group were some feeble old men, returning to the scene for the first time since 1876.

As the two groups meet by Custer's monument, they will salute, give the peace sign, and ride in column 4's—two Indians abreast twe white troopers-down 1,000 feet to the Indian Wars' Veterans' national cemetery.

There a monument will be dedicated and an old brave will hand to Major-General E. S. Godfrey, retired, of Crookston, N. Y., a symbolic hatchet to be buried in the base stone of the monument.

White-Man-Runs-Him, a Crow, will give the peace pipe to a Sioux chieftain and these tribes will smoke away forever the old hatreds.

Widow on Committee.

General Godfrey is chairman of the national committee in charge of the celebration. Heading the list of members are: Mrs. George A. Custer, New York; Mrs. Nina Sturgis Dousman, New York, a relative of Lieutenant Jack Sturgis, who fell with General Custer; Mrs. Francis M. Gibson; Mary Roberts Rinehart, U. S. Senators and Congressmen of Montana and Wyoming, Gov. A. G. Sorlie, North Dakota; Gov. J. E. Erickson, Montana; Mrs. Nellie T. Ross, Governor of Wyoming, presidents of leading Northwest railroads; Gen. S. W. Fountain, commander of the Order of Indian Wars; Havcrford, Conn.; Hon. Luther Larker, national commander National Veterans Indian Wars; Clay Center, Kan.; Hon. John H. Brandt, Los Angeles; Hon. John B. Inman, commander-in-chief G. A. R., Springfield, Ill.; Hon. Carmi Thompson, commander in U. S. S. W. V.; Hon. John Mahan, national commander disabled American Veterans, Helena, Mont.; Col. John McElroy, editor National Tribune, Washington; George W. Webb, editor "Winners of the West," St. Joseph, Mo.; and Col. George Keohn, editor "Veteran," Portland, Ore.

Among others present were D. F. Barry of Superior, Wis.; pioneer photographer of the Dakotas, whose galleries contain portraits of all the noted Indians of the Northwest and who forty years ago listened to Chief Gall describe the Custer battle, Pawnee Bill, and Joe Partello.

North Dakotans who cannot come to Crow agency will observe the day at Fort Abraham Lincoln near Mandan, N. D., from whence Custer and his gallant horsemen started on their fatal trip, gaily singing "The Girl I Left Behind Me." There Mrs. Custer and the families of the slain received on July 6 the first definite word of the disaster when Captain Marsh brought his "The Far West" into port, loaded with the dead and wounded of the battles that followed the Custer fight.

No Harshness for Indians.

There will be no harsh note towards the Indians in the celebration. Fifty years have done much to obliterate prejudice and enable the Northwest to view impartially the Indian uprisings. Published accounts in connection with the celebration have avoided use of the phrase "Custer Massacre." Recognition is given to the fact that the Indians strove against unequal odds to retain the land that was theirs by priority of settlement.

Men who knew Chief Gall, long after the Battle of Little Big Horn when years of reservation life had failed to break his spirit, honor his bravery. The late Major James A. McLaughlin, pioneer Indian agent in the Dakotas and later superintendent of all Indian agencies, has written the story of the Custer battle from the Indian standpoint, getting his material and atmosphere from Mrs. Spotted Horn Bull, educated Indian woman, and relative of Sitting Bull, the Medicine Chief, who was with Chief Gall when the attack was made on Custer.

Cotton Outlook in South Missouri Fine

Poplar Bluff, Mo., June 25.—The condition of cotton in Butler, Ripley, Stoddard, and Wayne counties is excellent, according to Hugo Boeving, leading cotton broker with headquarters here.

The weather during June has been ideal for Missouri's cotton crop. There has been plenty of rain and yet sufficient hot weather to cause the plants to mature rapidly.

The acreage will be five per cent less than last year but the crop condition is much better. Fields are clean and well cultivated, planting is finished and 90 per cent is up to a good stand. There has been no damage to date from insects.

Early Morning Marriage.

A young couple who are bent on getting married should be excused for some of the foolish things they pull off, we suppose, and the absurd nerve of calling men from their rest and sleep to accommodate them may be overlooked under the circumstances. Early Sunday morning Emert Akes was awakened by his phone ringing, and a voice at the other end asked him to hurry up and come over to town to issue a marriage license. He acceded to the request. Then Judge Otis T. Whaley was aroused and brought down town to perform the ceremony. At six o'clock Sunday morning Judge Whaley married Thomas C. Taylor and Signa O. Johnson, both of Des Moines, Ia. The young people left Des Moines at midnight Saturday night and arrived here in time for the 6 o'clock ceremony, and they expected to be back at Des Moines by noon.—Albany Ledger.

CARDS BECOME A BIG THREAT

ACQUISITION OF ALEXANDER IS GREAT HELP.

HIS WISDOM OF VALUE

Working With Bill Killifer, Grover Should Aid Much In Putting St. Louis Team Up Higher.

Chicago, June 25.—The St. Louis Cardinals became a more serious threat in the National League baseball race through the acquisition of Grover Cleveland Alexander, veteran pitcher of the senior league.

Alexander goes to the Cardinals from the Chicago Cubs via the waiver route at a price of $4,000. Just four years ago the Cubs refused an offer of $100,000 for the great pitcher.

Now resting in third place and only two and one half games from the top rung of the ladder, the Cardinals are looked upon as likely contenders for the penant. Cardinals sympathizers believe the veteran Alexander will be able to turn in eight or ten victories between now and the finish of the season—and that number of games may easily decide the National League championship.

But of even greater value to the Cardinals will be Alexander's wisdom in the ways of big league pitching. The St. Louis club has a group of young pitchers who may be directed along the path of greatness by the instruction Alexander will give them. When his close personal friend, Bill Killefer, was manager of the Cubs, Alexander devoted much of his time to the training of the younger members of the Cubs pitching staff and gave Killefer almost invaluable assistance.

In going to St. Louis, Alexander once more will join his old battery mate, Bill Killefer, who is assistant to Rogers Hornsby as manager of the Cardinals. This pair—Alexander and Killefer—should be of great assistance to Hornsby in leading the Cardinals toward a pennant.

Alexander leaves the Chicago Cubs a fallen idol. Just a few weeks ago he was presented with an automobile by admiring fans. His presence one the field has always brought cheers from the stands and bleechers. But he had difficulty with the new management of the club and a week ago was suspended indefinitely for breaking training rules. His release at that time was predicted but came earlier than expected.

Commemoration Of Day On Which John, the Baptist, Baptized Jesus —Spaniards Originate Sustom.

Mexico City, June 24.—Today is universal bath day in Mexico. Throughout the republic men, women and children by going down to the streams or swimming pools and bathing are commemorating the day on which St. John the Baptist baptized Jesus Christ.

This custom of observing "St. John's Day" was originated by the Spanish in the sixteenth century, when all recent converts among the natives were taken to a stream of running water and baptized. The custom is believed to be peculiar to Mexico.

As the tradition began to lose its hold on the people, following the gaining of independence, the ceremony began to take on a more festive aspect and lost somewhat of its religious significance. In the nineteenth century, therefore, the day began to be celebrated by aquatic fiestas, held in streams where available or in pools in the larger cities.

Today it is being celebrated principally by the laboring and peasant elements. In Mexico City some of the bathers arrived at the pools as early as four o'clock in the morning. Admission to the pools is gained by the payment of fifty centavos. Prizes are offered by civic or athletic organizations for excellence in aquatic sports. In the old days a "medio"—half a real, which is twelve cents, was the price of admission to the pools.

In addition to being one of the principal Catholic hilidays, St. John's Day is also the saints day for all persons named John.

Juan is a favorite name both for persons and towns. In some of the Indian villages the name is applied to the town in conjunction with its principal native industry. San Juan de Las Casuelas—or St. John of the Pots (for cooking) implies that the town receives its name from pottery works.

"He Toucheth the Hills, and They Smoke."

Comment on the Uniform International Sunday School Lesson for June 27, 1926.
Review Lesson.

Wm. Southern, Jr.

In Psalm 104 appears this line, "He looketh on the earth, and it trembleth: He touched the hills, and they smoke."

Only a few days before this is written the news dispatches carried vivid stories of an eruption of Mount Pele in Hawaii. With roarings and trembings, smoke and streaks of fire, great rocks were spouted in awe inspiring redness toward the skies which hung low above the crater top and then great rivers of molten lava crept above the edge of the crater and slowly and majestically rolled, an irresistible flood, down the mountain side. Nothing could stem this tide. Forests of great trees withered and disappeared at its advance, the beautiful tree-ferns melted in the heat, the guava trees sunk beneath the pouring primal earth and finally a village at the edge of the ocean disappeared and when the stream hit the sea steam rose to the clouds until steam and cloud make one curtain, the sea boiled, fish gave up their lives and it had been given to man in this day of 1926 to see how God made his world.

This newspaper picture was the more vivid to me because I have stood upon the edge of one of the craters of this island mountain and have seen where other lava outpourings have become a part of the earth whereon today are growing the richest luxury all the tropic trees and fruits and flowers of the jungle. I have ridden in automobiles on this mountainside over roads which were based on lava once poured out from this crater.

There are many such places in the world where we may see the work of God's hand in His creation and there are still a few places like Mount Pele where we may see God at work.

The book of Genesis, known in Hebrew as B'reshith, from the first word which means "In the beginning," is a record of the beginnings of things.

There is no conflict in Genesis between religion and science. The book shows us the purpose of God and the way God works. It is a protest against the current idea of the times in which it was written, the idea that the world was self originating. Genesis tells us that God was in the beginning, that He created the world and in the process of time made it fit for the occupation of man. It does not tell us how He did this or how long it took, the lesson is that In the beginning, God. Genesis in the first part of the record also tells us of the beginnings of sin and of the awful consequences of sin. We are accustomed to point out the wickedness of the world today and to say to one another that something ought to be done about it, that some more laws should be added to the thousands already in the books, to bewail the youth of today and the sins which we call sin. Genesis points us the way. We can only save our youth by education. I do not tell my children "Thou Shalt not," but I point out to them what will happen to their beautiful bodies and their wonderful minds if they do.

The second part of this great book deals with men and things. It takes up the lives of four patriarchs, beginning with Abraham and ending with Joseph. These stories are a part of Genesis and a part of the Bible because they are stories of types, types of men and women whom we may find in the world today, all about us, holding office, teaching in the schools, filling our pulpits, in the marts of trade, running politics, making way and doing their part in developing the world today just as Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and Joseph did when they were the Patriarchs and the leaders of the Hebrews.

So true to human life is this account of God's dealings with his Chosen People that we may see as the story develops a consecutive outline of religious history. Abraham separates himself from his homeland and marches into Canaan. God was with Abraham and he prospers and becomes a great nation. Isaac carries the story for another chapter and the Hebrews begin to be mighty and to make treaties with kings. Then jacob's conversion and his name changed to Israel.

Then comes the most fascinating story of them all, the story of Joseph. How his life is begun in the joy of being the favorite son of a rich man. Suddenly he becomes a slave and is sent to live in a foreign court. He goes to prison and emerges the second power in the land and is enabled to pay off his mortgage on the old home and brings wealth and happiness to his old father.

Thus came the Hebrews into Egypt when famine drove them from their own land and they grew mighty in wealth and power until they attracted the jealousy of the Pharaoh and were enslaved.

Through all this story which covers long periods of years we follow the purposes of God. This is especially plain in the story of Joseph where poverty and slavery coming from crime, makes the situation seem impossible and then God turns it all about to carry out His own purposes, overruling all things by His superior power and converting what seemed to be insuperable misfortunes into the carrying out of His wishes for His people.

In his introduction to the Book of Genesis in the New Century Bible, Dr. W. H. Bennett says, "Thus the lives of the patriarchs enshrine for us some of the most primitive and yet the most permanent ideas as to man, and life, and God. Going further back, the story of the Fall dramatizes, so to speak, the awakening to the sense of sin in the race and in the individual. It helps us as it helped mankind ever since it was written, to interpret the distrust and fear which hinder our fellowship with god. But the stories of the creation, the fall, and the flood also expound men's faiths concerning God and nature, and show us how the Divine Life had revealed itself long ago as One ruling alike everywhere in the known and the unknown."

Does the adventure of life pay? It sometimes seems to us that it is not worthwhile, that there is so much evil and misery and injustice and wickedness in the world that it is not worth the living. Few among the old men you know will agree that they would like to live it all over again. We only see the short span of one life.

I have no patience with those who insist that the world is growing worse and that evil is winning and that righteousness and virute are out of date. Down in their hearts they know better. Even these have shrines which are still sweet and pure.

It seems to me that one who will honestly study the book of Genesis, the dealings of God with man, the lessons there taught, one who will see how wickedness of a primitive world was turned into stepping stones and became a ladder reaching into heaven, can doubt that God rules and that his guiding hand turns it all for the accomplishment of His great purpose.

DRAMATIC EVENTS IN BIBLE HISTORY : : By Walter Scott and Harlowe R. Hoyt

The Dreaming of Pharoah

Now Pharaoh dreamed that he stood beside a river from which came seven fat kine to graze in the meadow. Seven lean kine followed and devoured them.
Again Pharaoh dreamed of seven fat ears of corn devoured by seven scrawny ears. Wise men and seers could not interpret the dreams, and the chief butler recalled Joseph and his gift of prophecy
Joseph interpreted the dreams to mean seven years of prosperity, followed by seven years of famine. He advised Pharaoh how to prepare against that time.
So well did he think of Joseph, Pharaoh made him prime minister. Thus, after two years in prison, he became second only to the ruler himself.

The BOBCAT

BY HENRY C. ROWLAND

SYNOPSIS.

Big Tim Burke, real estate operator, and known to his associates as a land pirate, discharges one of his young lieutenants called Pol Gaillard, because he is irritated by the latter's sleekness of appearance, and nonchalant manner. Pol learns that his ex-boss covets a desirable piece of Long Island property owned by Professor Husted and that another land shark, Michael Cadrigan, is after the same bit of land. Cadrigan lives on the shore of Long Island sound with his step-daughter, Veronica. His estate is across the bay from that of Professor Husted. The old professor lives like a hermit, and Veronica is his only visitor. Cadrigan asks Veronica to discontinue calling on the old man, intimating that the professor's enemies may harm her. Noticing a sloop anchored opposite the house, Veronica suggests to her step-father that they call on the owner. They are invited on board, and their host introduces himself as Pol Gaillard, posing as an itinerant poet and artist. That night Pol rows over to the Husted house and while he is ashore his sloop is cut adrift. He rows over to his boat and releases his second anchor. The next night he and Veronica meet at Professor Husted's house. On leaving Pol finds his boat has been scuttled. The professor asks him to be his guest. In the morning Veronica takes some of Cadrigan's clothes over to Pol. She comes upon him and the professor working on the sloop, which they had beached.

INSTALMENT XVII.

A Lamentable Incident.

Veronica was startled into silence. The professor looked up at Pol with a slumbering glow in his deep, intelligent eyes.

"Have you located the miscreant, Mr. Gaillard?"

"I have, Mr .Husted. He is behind a clump of rocks with a fringe of bushes at the top, about two hundred yards behind us."

Veronica clasped her hands. "He may be armed," she said.

"That is a chance that I shall have to take," said Pol.

Veronica, all a-tremble, felt as if she were on the verge of an hysterical outburst.

"Do you mean to say," she asked breathlessly and with an involuntary lowering of her voice, "that there is a man lurking behind those rocks, and that when Mr. Gaillard gets tired of talking he is going to try to capture him, at the risk of getting shot?"

"Such is the situation, my dear," said the professor calmly.

Veronica gave a sort of sob of despair. "Then, for heaven's sake get, about it," she said. "You'll drive me mad between you."

Pol looked inquiringly at the professor. "Perhaps Miss Cadrigan had better withdraw before the action begins, Mr. Husted?"

"A good suggestion, Mr. Gaillard." The professor looked benignly at Veronica. "Go back to the house, my dear."

But Veronica's knees, robust enough for most occasions, now refused to support hed. She was far from being an Amazon, and the suspense of this bizarre and terrifying episode was more than she could stand. Pol glanced at her and his muscles seemed to tauten. He turned and started at a walk toward the clump of rocks. Veronica, stifling a shriek with both hands over her mouth, swung herself about and stared after him in anguish. Walking springly though not fast, with a gait that suggested the clean stepping of a game cock, Pol continued his advance until he had covered about a hundred yards. There came a sudden stirring in the fringe of bushes. The figure of a man who seemed to be dressed in the whipcord breeches and gaiters of a groom darted out from behind the rocks, speeding swiftly across the meadow, which at this spot was comparatively smooth and level.

Pol was after him like a whippet, slipped of its leash. He gave them an exhibition of running that would have and in the past had more than once delighted the heart of a track trainer. His speed and form were lost on his two spectators for the first hundred yards. Then a better observation of it was furnished by the quarry's turning obliquely to the right, foolish tactics so apt to be taken by a frightened fugitive.

The object, it then appeared, was to avoid the far stretch of open meadow and get more quickly into the shelter of something that might be dodged about. But it cost the fellow, himself no poor sprinter, about fifty yards of lead, and Pol had from the start rapidly outpaced him.

Then, some two yards in his wake, the interested onlookers were treated to a pleasing spectacle, and one that would have aroused the enthusiasm of a football player. Pol's trim body was launched in a running dive, hung for a moment in the air horizontal, arms forward and apart. The tackle, so admirable in form, took the fugitive just above the knees, locked both legs in an entangling grip, smashed him to earth, rolled him over and over, and left him limply sprowled.

Pol sprang up, and stood for a moment with legs apart and arms akimbo, hands resting on his narrow hips. But only for a moment. His quarry appeared suddenly to become galvanized into action. He scrambled up with the alacrity of youth and good condition, a sturdy rascal, who, if no great runner, was well set in the mold of a good enough fighter, a slightly bigger man than Pol, or at least appearing so because more fully clad. He now launched a swift and determined counter offensive, so that the next event in these Sabbath field sports, for it was Sunday, was that of pugilism.

He swung a wicked left at Pol, who ducked and got in a useful straight body jab with his right. The grunt knocked out by this reached Veronica and the professor at their considerable distance. Recovering himself, the prowler tried apparently to clinch, but was stopped by an uppercut that fixed his glassy eyes upon the sun, just then at full meridian of the summer solstice.

That finished it. The man went down in a crumpled fashion, gazing at infinity. The professor softly clapped his well shaped hands.

"Bravo!" said he.

Veronica sprang to her feet. From the moment that the trap was sprung she had recognized Pol's victim, and she was angry, bewildered, and appalled.

She rose, and, followed in leisurely fashion by the professor, hurried to the location of the kill, or perhaps finish would be the better word. Pol glanced at her a little sheepishly, his shirt was torn across the back and side and his skin surfaces abrased.

Veronica looked down in puzzled anger at the prostrate young man, who was beginning to show signs of life.

"That is our groom, Dennis," she said wrathfully.

"Appropriately named," murmured Pol. "I seem unfortunately destined to spread havoc in your stables. First I blunder in your way, causing you to lame your horse, and now I mess up the poor animal's chambermaid."

The professor, who had ambled up, bent his brow sternly on the groom.

"What are you doing here?" he demanded.

Dennis scrambled to his feet and saluted Veronica sheepishly.

"The marster's orders, miss."

"What were the master's orders?" Veronica demanded.

"To keep an eye on you, miss."

Veronica looked hopelessly bewildered. "But why should I need an eye kept on me when I am with Professor Husted——?"

"You'll 'ave to ask Mr. Cadrigan, miss."

"Do you mean to say," Veronica demanded, "that you have been ordered to follow me whenever I come over here?"

It had struck her suddenly that Dennis had never been about the stables on her return from a ride, and that once or twice when returning over the same road she had met him going on some errand—as he had said.

Dennis looked down without answering. He was evidently aware of having made a mess not only of things but of himself.

Veronica did not pursue her questioning of the groom. She looked suspiciously at Pol. "Did you know who it was behind those rocks?"

'Of course not," he answered. "I did not know there was anybody until I came up the bank and saw a movement in the bushes."

Veronica looked at Dennis. "Where's your horse?"

"Over there on the lane, miss."

"Well, then, go and ride back to the house, and if Mr. Cadrigan asks you what you have seen you can tell him nothing—that would be better for you, as we shall say nothing."

Dennis saluted and rocked off unsteadily. The professor looked after him with a thoughtful face.

"A lamentable incident, Mr. Gaillaird."

'Very, Mr. Husted."

'I do not apologize to you, Veronica," said the professor, "because I feel your father's solicitude for you, while on my property, to be unflattering to me."

Veronica choked back a sob. "I am thoroughly ashamed," she said.

"I am not distinctly proud of my part of it," said Pol. "I was thinking only of my boat; but why did the fellow run away?"

Veronica gave a short, bitter laugh. "I supose he had orders not to get caught spying on me. He was too much of a fool to see that it was too late."

"Let us not blame Mr. Cadrigan for his watchful care," said the professor. "I spoke too hastily, my dear. No doubt your step-father has his ill wishers, and desires to run no risk of their venting spite on you."

Pol raised his eyebrows. "I trust that Mr. Cadrigan will forgive me for my interference. Please be good enough not to mention this."

PRECAUTIONS NEEDED AFTER OPERATION

It Takes Months for Nature to Heal Damaged Tissues and for the New Growth to Lose Its Tenderness.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

To talk about your operation is just as natural as to breathe. It is human, indeed, to date everything to some appealing past experience. "When I was in the Legislature," "when I was a Senator," "when I was President of the Federation"—how natural it is to make frequent reference to that unusual period!

To one unfamiliar with the smell of an anaesthetic, the quiet efficiency of the hospital, and the dread of what may happen as the result of the surgery, produce such emotions it is no wonder the experience remains fresh in mind. Because of these facts it is expected you will often speak of your operation.

Unfortunately, there is a further reason why you may be reminded of your operation. There may be tenderness, dragging and actual pain in the operated region.

A friend of mine has had recently a radical abdominal operation. The other day I inquired how he felt. "Not well at all," he replied.

"My side hurts a lot."

It isn't remarkable that this should be the case. When the abdominal wall has been cut through and a lot of the insides have been taken out, it requires time for Nature to readjust the parts and get them accustomed to their new relationship.

If you break your leg or dislocate your shoulder, it takes months for the torn and damaged tissues to lose their tenderness. There will be soreness on pressure for a long, long time. After any sort of operation there will be sensitive spots which are all the time getting hit, just as a sore thumb is.

When you bend or twist or turn or lift or get into any position involving the operated part you are sure to be reminded of your operation.

Then when you meet a friend and talk with him it may well be he, too, has had an operation. Perhaps his old wound is bothering him. That makes him talk about his operation, and, of course, you are reminded at once of yours. Consequently operations are a common subject of conversation.

It should be impressed on everybody who has had surgical treatment that it takes a long time to get well. It is wise to be careful about overwork, and to avoid fatigue and carelessness in exercising care of the body. Fresh air, good food, abundant sleep and happy surroundings—everything to encourage health, good blood and free circulation will help to make the recovery complete.

An abundance of cleansing blood is the great factor in bringing about complete recovery.

It is all right to talk about your operation if you want to, but don't forget it isn't as interesting to other folks as it is to you. Your friends are glad you came through it all right, but, frankly, they are not likely to care a rap about hearing the details—certainly not more than once.

Big Elm Spreads Shade More Than 100 Feet

Kansas Farmer Is Trying To Save Old Tree By Filling In Cracks With Concrete.

Americus, Kan., June 25.—J. B. Cusie, who lives northwest of here, thinks a great deal of an old elm tree that spreads a shade in his pasture more than 100 feet in diameter.

He is going to make an attempt to save the life of the elm as the three main branches from the trunk are spreading apart, splitting the main body.

Cusic is having the cracks cleaned, planning to brace the limbs by eye filled with a concrete mixture. He is disinfectant applied and the apertures bolts.

Mrs. Albert Leonard of St. Louis arrived here Tuesday for a visit at the home of her parents Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Crowson.

Mrs. J. P. Baum and daughter, Katherine of Kansas City left for their home the first of the week after a few days visit at the home of Mrs. L. J. Neal mother of Mrs. Baum.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Markt visited relatives at Oregon, Mo., last Sunday.

Mr. Harry Penland went to Kansas City on a business trip the first of the week.

The Courtney sisters of St. Joseph will give a musical program in the Christian Church next Tuesday evening, June 29 at 8 p. m., under the auspices of the division of the Ladies Aid Society of which Mrs. Omar Strong is captain.

These ladies are well known as entertainers and no doubt will give a splendid entertainment.

The rain last Sunday evening interferred with corn plowing for a day or two the first of the week but most of the fields are again dry enough to work and corn plowing is beging rushed in order to get it out of the way of haying and harvest. Many fields of corn will get but one more plowing on account of it growing so fast.

George Neal shipped a load of hogs of his own feeding to St. Joseph on Thursday of this week.

The Farmers Exchange also shipped a load on Thursday.

Frank Hinton and Henry Bosch shipped a load together on Wednesday and O. R. Saunders had a load on the market early in the week.

The construction company which is doing the paving on Highway No. 27 between Pickering and Maryville made a record run on Thursday and put in 1,590 feet of concrete.

They will finish their work here in a short time as they now have a little less than three quarters of a mile to put down to complete the contract.

Same Old Chick

Here's the famous Chick Evans, who has won so many golfing medals he doesn't know what to do with them, as he appeared the other day upon returning to this country from England, where he competed in the British amateur championship. Evans failed to show his usual brand of golf, going out in one of the early rounds, but it didn't prevent him from flashing his famous Evans smile when this picture was taken.

Wheat Harvest on in Lyons County, Kan.

Very Little Help Being Hired.—Rust Has Cut Yield In Many Sections Of County.

Emporia, Kan., June 25.—The harvest is on in Lyons county.

The farmers in this vicinity moved their binders out in the fields the fore part of this week and commenced the job putting the waving stands of wheat into shocks. However, reports are coming in that a few farmers are rushing their last time through the corn this week and expect to get into the wheat fields as soon as possible.

The work is being done generally by the farmers themselves, very little help being hired. According to advices received here the yield is averaging 25 bushels and lower, with a few fields panning out around the 35 mark while others are getting only 15 to 20 bushels an acre.

Rust, which has attacked many fields of oats, is cutting down the yield in many places, and the yield of 15 to 20 bushels an acre has been reported from field north of the city.

Veteran Is Pensioned After 62-Year Effort

Columbus, O., June 25. — Lester Cooley, 84, has finally decided to quit working. For Cooley, a Civil War veteran, through an unquenchable and unwavering spirit, has finally won a 62 year controversy with the United States government.

He has just been informed that he is to get his honorable discharge papers for his services in the Civil War, and entitling him to a pension.

He was wounded at Petersburgh, Va., July 5, 1864, and was taken to a hospital in Philadelphia. He was sent home a few months later and told by hospital physicians that his discharge papers would follow. But it has taken 62 years to restore Cooley his rights as an honorably discharged veteran.

Congressman Speaks of Ohio, undertaking to secure a discharge for Cooley, finally caused Congress to pass the necessary legislation, making Cooley's discharge official and entitling him to his pension.

Bunceton—The citizens' band has opened its season of free concerts, to be given each Thursday night.

Independence—The American Legion will have charge of the dedication of the new Memorial Hall here on July 4.

Paris—T. J. Noonan of this city has on exhibit a grape shot used by the Mexicans in their attack on the Alamo in Texas.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, June 25.—Wheat prices crashed under pressure of the increasing Southwest crop movement and a flood of selling orders on the Chicago Board of Trade today, closing sharply lower in all positions. There was also a sharp dip in corn, while all other quotations were below yesterday's closing figures though oats displayed some strength on the falling market.

Wheat opened fractionally higher this morning but after that there was only one trend in the pit—and that was downward.

Grain was piling up faster than it could be handled at many points. Losses ranging from 1⅛ to 3⅜ cents were registered at the close.

Cash prices too are tumbling. They are generally 2 cents lower here but were as much as 6 cents off at Wichita and other Southwestern points where there is much more grain than can be sold.

Trading steadied a little after the noon hour when there was some support from outsiders, but before it had been as hectic a day as the previous ones were dull.

July corn closed at 68¾, a new low on the crop and other positions lost big fractions because of selling induced by the defeat of the Dawes-McNary-Haugen farm aid bill. Cash prices, too were lower.

Oats lost about half a cent in all positions in sympathy with the break in corn and wheat.

Oats lost about a half-cent in all positions in sympathy with the break in corn and wheat, but displayed a much firmer undertone than was perceivable in the other pits.

Provisions closed lower because of the grain dip and also on the news that Germany will not lift the duty on lard until July.

Cyclone Played Odd Pranks Near Bethany

Chickens Stripped of Feathers, Cattle Lifted Up by Wind and Plow Turned Long Furrow.

Here are a few of the freakish results of the storm near Cainsville in Harrison county, which caused considerable damage along a wide path there last week, as recorded in the Bethany Clipper:

Chickens by the dozen were stripped of their feathers and dismembered at the E. A. Collins place. Every few feet in the path of the storm could be found a wing, a leg and all parts of chickens, apparently picked of even the pinfeathers.

Onions growing in the Collins garden were blown down, then beat into the ground, leaving the appearance of having grown straight east instead of up.

A galvanized watering trough at the Collins place was bent around a tree. A dozen men might have duplicated the feat, but only with great effort.

Fred Crouse, northeast of Cainsville, said he was startled to see a riding plow coming tearing through a field plowing up a deep furrow along the way. Reaching a fence it was picked up and carried to the site of his wrecked barn. The plow did not seem to be any the worse for its spree.

Howard Taff's cattle were found after the storm in the pasture of a neighbor, a long distance away. A few of them were scratched slightly, but most of them were unhurt.

The story is told that near Cainsville a farmer missed his dog. He found the animal far to the east, wrapped in a blanket and hanging up in a tree. Uninjured, the dog was overjoyed to see his owner again.

PRINCE OF WALES TO MOVE TO PALACE.

London.—The Prince of Wales is prospectively homesick as the time draws near for him to leave his clubby bachelor apartments in York House for the enormous and much less homelike Marlborough House.

The move is a short one, just across the street, but associates of H. R. H. say that he is very reluctant to give up the familiar atmosphere of his present home for the somewhat bleak palace over the way. Incidentally, being four times as big, Marlborough House will cost a lot more to run. This former residence of the late Queen Alexandra is now being reconditioned against the time when the Prince will bring his duffel-bag across.

All England is hoping that he will at a not too distant date share it with a bride, but even the most resolute matchmakers have found little encouragement lately.

U. S. EDITORS PAY TRIBUTE

HONOR HARDING'S MEMORY IN SHORT SERVICE.

DEDICATE MEMORIAL

Cranite Shaft Erected At Place Where Late President Operated Harvester Cleaning First Bundles.

Hutchison, Kan., June 25.—Two hundred and fifty newspaper editors of the country will pause here today by the side of the road to honor the memory of a country editor who became president of the United States.

The editors, enroute to Los Angeles on two special trains to attend the convention of the National Editorial Association, stop to dedicate a school children's memorial to the late President, Warren G. Harding.

It was here, June 23, 1923, that President Harding paid tribute to the dignity of farming, mounted a tractor-harvester and gleaned the first bundles of the 1923 crop.

It was an incident in the last eventful trip of the late president, and the country hasn't forgotten. On the very spot where Harding operated the harvester, the school children of Reno county have erected a granite memorial shaft.

Surrounding the shaft has been laid out a small park. At the rear is a flagstaff, the care of the colors being entrusted to the school children. On either side of the shaft are two cannon field pieces of the Argonne, St. Mihiel and Verdun—which once fired the presidential salute, but which now stand as silent guards to Harding's memory.

The memorial stands by the side of the Santa Fe trail where thousands pass annually in motor car journeys from coast to coast.

Dedication of the memorial by the editors will take place this evening.

Kansas City, Mo., June 25.—Members of the National Editorial Association, enroute to Los Angeles to attend the forty-first annual convention of the association will receive their first welcome as a group here today.

Entertainment of the editors here will be a forerunner of an invitation to hold the 1927 meeting in Missouri, at St. Louis, Kansas City, or at some other advantageously located but smaller city in the state.

The invitation is to be made by Frank O. Edgecombe, president of the association, on behalf of the state. The convention to be held in the early summer of 1927, will attract 500 and more publishers.

Fordyce and Miller Buy Wray Oil Station

A deal was closed Tuesday whereby K. E. Fordyce of this place and Dr. Jesse Miller of Maryville became the owners of the Wray Oil Co. service station and business. The new firm took possession of the business Wednesday morning. The business is to be operated under the old name of the Wray Oil Company and is to be managed by K. E. Fordyce.

The Wray Oil Co. was established by Ralph Wray and his father, Ernest Wray, in the fall of 1923, and the firm has always enjoyed a good business. Ralph Wray, who has been manager of the company, has no definite plans for the future, but many friends in Burlington Junction hope that he will enter some other line of business and continue to make his home here.—Burlington Junction Post.

Baseball Team Is Planned at Barnard

Diamond Is Being Prepared West of Town and First Game May Be Played Sunday.

Barnard is to have a base ball team this year and the ground is being put into shape for playing, according to the Barnard Bulletin. A diamond is being prepared just south of the old Daniels diamond on the McFarland place west of town. The ground is quite a distance from town, but as most everyone has a car and will enjoy riding that far, to witness a game, the distance should not make much difference in the attendance.

The team will be managed by Otis Melvin and a team of most all young fellows will be used. The boys desiring a try out will be given a chance to make good and a very good team should be secured.

It is the plan of the manager to have the first game Sunday if the grounds can be placed in shape to play on by that time.

Trenton Delegates Praise Welcome Here

(Trenton Times).

All were enthusiastic in their appreciation of the entertainments provided by the Maryville post and are planning an even greater program when the state delegates meet here in June, 1927.

History of Local Camp of Royal Neighbors of America in Poetry

About 100 members of Pansy Camp No. 333, Royal Neighbors of America, and friends attended the open meeting yesterday afternoon at I. O. O. F. Hall in celebration of the thirtieth anniversary of the organization.

Mrs. R. F. Johnston read the following original poem concerning the history of the local camp:

In the year of Eighteen Ninety-six,
In March, on the twelfth day,
Pansy Camp, number three, three, three,
Was organized in the R. N. A.

Not a beneficiary organization,
But just a social club;
Where true friendship really existed—
For no one would they snub.

And so to get the charter,
Twenty members there must be;
So several men joined also—
Making twenty-three.

The place where they held their meetings,
Was just a rented room,
On the corner of Third and Market,
Above the Lippman Saloon.

Sarah E. and John H. Thorp
Headed the membership list.
Then Jeff and Mabel Garrett—
Both are gone and sadly missed.

John and Anna Boyer,
Ella Wilson and Winnie Wood,
William and Clara Struck,
Served faithfully as they should.

Emma Isil and Mrs. Elliott,
Sterling and Elma Smith,
Lydia and William Feurt,
Their names I find herewith.

William Smith and wife, Nancy,
H. E. Ralston, Cartha and C. H. Lane,
Helped organize Pansy Camp,
By writing down their names.

Two members more made twenty-three,
Joseph and Mary Cast
And Pansy Camp number three, three, three,
Was organized at last.

Just one of all those members
Neighbor Thorp remains today,
For some have gone to meet their God,
While others have moved away.

The first Oracle was Neighbor Thorp
Always serving loyal hearted
And several times she has filled that chair
As others have departed.

She is always willing to do her bit
Of her duties she does not tire.
Her face is one we'd surely miss,
Around our bright camp fire.

The first Recorder was Winnie Wood,
But she has long been gone,
And other Recorders fill her place
As time goes on and on.

And then this little social club
Out grew the number twenty-three.
The organization was finally changed
To both social and beneficiary.

And the little group, which was so small
Just grew and grew somehow,
We count with pride our members
One hundred and forty-one now.

We meet three Thursdays of each month,
For business everyone.
Then once a month the club will meet
With a programme, eats and fun.

To help the sick and needy
Ever is our aim,
For to be a Royal Neighbor
One must live up to the name.

During the years of nineteen twenty
And nineteen twenty-one
We cared for a war orphan
Each contributing to the fund.

When the St. Francis Hospital asked for help
In furnishing their building new,
We served, to help furnish a room
As any Royal Neighbor would do.

And, for the comfort of the soldiers
Who saved our Country's flag,
The Royal Neighbors cut and sewed,
Making them bedside bags.

With "endurance," "courage" and "unselfishness"
We live from day to day.
With "Faith" and "Modesty"
To help us on our way.

So if a Royal Neighbor
You think you'd like to be
Just place your membership with us
In Pansy Camp number three, three, three.

Women Want Higher Places in Business

Federation Of Business And Professional Clubs To Outline Program—Aim For Greater Efficiency.

Des Moines, Ia., June 25.—A higher place for women in the business world will be one of the things demanded by the national convention of the Federation of Business and Professional Clubs which will be held in Des Moines, June 12 to 16, according to Miss Emma Dot Partridge, of New York, the executive secretary. Communicating with local officials of the organization Miss Partridge stated as follows:

"Individual development of our members so that they will merit more is to be our method of working toward this goal," she said. "We touch business at every point, and our aim is for greater efficiency all along the line.

"We also expect to discuss policies for service which requires business and professional training, and which our women are best fitted to handle. We shall probably develop a three to five year program calling for civic, community, and national work along these lines."
